The 2002 Report of Voluntary Agencies Engaged in Overseas Relief and Development lists annual information received from private and voluntary organizations registered with USAID as of November 1, 2001.

OVERVIEW

Introduction

Private and voluntary organizations (PVOs)<sup>1</sup> are vital development partners working independently and alongside the U.S. Agency for International Development (USAID). The Voluntary Foreign Aid Programs: Report of Voluntary Agencies Engaged in Overseas Relief and Development (VolAg Report) presents an overview of their work. The VolAg Report is an annual snapshot of U.S. PVOs registered with USAID. The report summarizes PVO program activities, showing the geographical and sectoral focus of their activities, as well as their support, revenue, and expenditures. PVO website and e-mail listings can be found in the Registry section. 436 U.S. PVOs submitting annual information were registered with USAID as of November 1, 2001.

Recognizing the Voluntary, Autonomous Nature of PVOs

USAID views PVOs as development partners carrying out long-term sustainable development and humanitarian relief activities. USAID recognizes the independent mission of PVOs as well as their role in implementing USAID's programs. By joining forces, USAID and PVOs can do more together than either could accomplish alone.

One of the challenges inherent in such a partnership is the achievement of the right mixture of collaboration and independence between public and private spheres. A healthy degree of separation between the two is essential for the unique mission of each, but cooperation is also critical to the vitality of both. Thus, interdependence is the fundamental nature of the USAID and PVO partnership. In keeping with this principle of the public-private partnership, U.S. PVOs registered and supported by USAID must meet the "privateness requirement" legislated by Congress. This means that to be eligible for grants from development assistance funds, U.S. PVOs must show that at least 20 percent of annual financial resources for their international programs come from sources other than the U.S. Government.

Voluntary Agencies: A Tradition of Support for Humanitarian and Development Assistance

USAID recognizes the significant role that PVOs play in providing humanitarian and development assistance in developing and transition countries. Although the PVOs registered with USAID vary markedly in size, scope, and capability, they share a strong commitment to improving the quality of life for people in developing countries. In its work overseas, the PVO community demonstrates the traditional American values of pluralism, voluntary action, and concern for others. PVOs foster sustainable self-help efforts at the community level, providing a direct channel for people-to-people programs that broaden the participation of the poorest citizens in the social and economic decisions that affect their daily lives.

The humanitarian activities of the U.S. PVOs originated many years ago in response to natural disasters and the social consequences of war. As a result of their ability to respond quickly and effectively, PVOs emerged as leaders in disaster relief. Gradually, their efforts broadened from relief and emergency food distribution to longer-term, more sustainable development programs designed to address the root causes of poverty and disaster mitigation. This transition from short-term relief to long-term development programs strengthened the cooperation between USAID and the PVO community that has firmly taken root over the past three decades. Today, many PVOs link short-term emergency activities to longer-term development objectives. The effort to bridge the gap between humanitarian and development assistance is increasingly important to USAID programs and, in particular, to crisis mitigation. PVOs have the skills, experience, and innovative approaches to help address these priorities.

While continuing to respond to human needs in emergency situations, PVOs increasingly contribute their private resources to development activities that are essential to helping people in the developing world improve their quality of life. The development programs operated by PVOs promote broad-based economic growth and a more sustainable environment. PVOs also foster human capacity development, focusing particularly on the attainment of health and education levels required for all citizens to contribute to, and benefit from, economic development. The work encourages pluralism and the emergence of democratic institutions.

A Shared Basis for Collaboration

PVOs and USAID pursue shared priorities that are aimed at achieving effective sustainable development. Although the objectives of PVOs are not identical to those of USAID, their work with the Agency contributes to the achievement of USAID's four pillars: the Global Development Alliance; Economic Growth, Agriculture and Trade; Global Health; and Democracy, Conflict and Humanitarian Assistance. PVOs are actively involved in specific programs to meet Agency objectives in areas such as microenterprise development, child survival and health, natural resource management, civil society promotion, PVO capacity strengthening, food security, and humanitarian assistance and disaster relief.

In the new millennium, USAID will continue to place emphasis on programs that build strong, free market economies, foster the growth of microcredit, stimulate agricultural development, and promote health and well being. Priority will continue to be placed on programs that protect the environment for future generations, while bringing about economic development and an equitable sharing of resources. USAID also supports programs that help fledgling democracies around the world, while facilitating citizen participation and the development of civil society.

<sup>1</sup>PVO is used to denote the voluntary organizations working with USAID, including both U.S. and international private and voluntary organizations (IPVOs), as well as cooperative development organizations (CDOs).

USAID supports strengthened partnerships between PVOs and their local non-governmental organization (NGO) partners. By helping to build the capacity of local partners, PVOs are making a critical contribution to sustainable development. USAID's partnerships with PVOs and NGOs also help empower citizens to take advantage of changes in their own environments, add new energy to development efforts, and strengthen the fabric of civil society. This has resulted in the creation of learning and advocacy networks as well as alliances between nonprofits and corporations, both here and abroad.

Leveraging Private Resources for Development

PVOs make a vital contribution to USAID's foreign assistance programs. As data presented in this report indicate, the private resources devoted to international development by the PVO community exceed support provided by the U.S. Government. During fiscal year 2000, registered U.S. PVOs received $9.8 billion in annual private support, which was more than five times the amount they received in USAID support, which totaled $1.7 billion. Other U.S. Government agencies and international organizations provided an additional $1.6 billion, bringing the total support and revenue to $13.1 billion.

New Policies and Simplified Procedures Strengthen USAID/PVO Collaboration

In recent years, USAID has reformed many of its operating systems. These reforms have facilitated improved development performance by emphasizing core values<sup>2</sup>, simplifying administrative procedures, and eliminating unnecessary layers of bureaucracy.

USAID has simplified its bureaucratic procedures ranging from PVO registration to grant competition and administration. These and other ongoing reforms will allow PVOs to focus on development work rather than unnecessary or unproductive paperwork. USAID handbooks, for example, have been replaced by the more flexible Automated Directives System (ADS), which is available on-line at the USAID website (www.usaid.gov). Chapter 303—Grants and Cooperative Agreements—will be of particular interest to the PVO community. Input from the PVO community assisted the Agency with revising the ADS 303. Interested parties are encouraged to visit USAID's Procurement website for pertinent information on doing business with the Agency (www.usaid.gov/pubs/ads/300/303).

USAID's website (www.usaid.gov) makes the Agency more accessible to its partners. A tremendous amount of material is available online. As well as the ADS, press releases, the USAID telephone directory, procurement information, "Results-Oriented Assistance: A USAID Sourcebook," and a directory of USAID awards (the Yellow Book) can be found on the website.

USAID'S Office of Private and Voluntary Cooperation: A Central Contact Point for PVOs and Competitive PVO Grant Programs

USAID's support for its PVO partners comes from many sources within the Agency, including USAID Missions based overseas and the regional and central bureaus located in Washington. The Office of Private and Voluntary Cooperation (PVC) is the central point of contact for PVOs. PVC is responsible for the registration of U.S. and international PVOs with USAID. In addition, PVC administers PVO competitive grant programs that seek to strengthen the organizational and technical capacity of U.S. PVOs and, through them, their local partners. PVC is also the secretariat for the Advisory Committee on Voluntary Foreign Aid.

PVC, in coordination with the missions, regional offices, and other bureaus within USAID, administers programs that are designed to enhance the impact of USAID/PVO collaboration by strengthening the capabilities of PVOs to innovate, scale up, and effectively manage their programs and to partner with local counterparts. This allows for more effective and sustainable programming at the local level and the transfer of capacity to local organizations. PVC provides its capacity-building support through a number of grant programs, including Matching Grant, Child Survival, Cooperative Development, Victims of Torture, Farmer-to-Farmer, Development Education, and Ocean Freight Reimbursement.

This document, commonly referred to as the VolAg Report, is the culmination of a year's worth of effort by PVC to collect, validate, and disseminate a clear and factual report about the PVO community.

Ms. Maria Otero, President and CEO

Gives people the tools they need to work their way out of poverty. By providing microloans and business training to poor women and men who start their own businesses, ACCION's microcredit affiliates help people work their own way up the economic ladder with dignity and pride. ACCION seeks to bring this opportunity to as many of the world's three billion poor as possible by developing microcredit institutions that are financially self-sustaining and, as a network, capable of reaching millions of people. ACCION programs overall have made $3.2 billion in loans—some as small as $100—to more than 2 million people. Ninety-eight percent of the loans have been paid back. In 2000 alone, ACCION programs disbursed $497 million in small loans averaging $610 to microentrepreneurs in 13 Latin American countries and 23 U.S. cities.

Ms. Talin Daghljan, Chair

Coordinates various projects that its worldwide affiliates have implemented in Armenia. ARS EUSA has provided several million dollars worth of assistance in the form of nutrition, community development, medicine, mental health, and micromanufacturing to Armenians since the 1988 earthquake. A voluntary women's philanthropic organization with affiliates in 19 countries, including the United States, ARS EUSA has adopted two approaches to address the short- and long-term needs of the Armenian people. The organization seeks to provide immediate humanitarian assistance to the most needy sectors of Armenia and to strengthen self-reliance and support institution building within the country. ARS EUSA also provides assistance to its affiliate in Armenia the Armenian Relief Cross.

Director, International Services

Promotes permanency planning for children—first, within their own countries and cultures, and then, through international adoption if the first is not possible. Bethany's philosophy is to provide development support to existing programs in the country or to partner with in-country programs. The country then develops a new program that assists children and families and prevents institutionalization of children. Bethany provides counseling services, adoption, temporary foster care, and medical care. The organization also works in partnership with the government to ensure sustainability when Bethany's work is completed. Bethany pursues these goals through educational partnerships with universities, sending volunteers to the field, hiring qualified indigenous people, and providing local training programs.

Endeavors to improve the health and living conditions of the poorest population in South Asia, primarily in India and Nepal. Since 1992, TBP of the International Health Organization (IHO) has worked to advocate, develop, and implement rural health programs that are integrated with rural development programs. TBP strongly believes that isolated attempts to "treat" diseases in these populations cannot be successful unless the accompanying problems of abject poverty and the total environment surrounding and perpetuating it are improved. Our programs are concentrated upon environmental health, community health, and vocational training and health education of women. TBP works within the strictures of the prevailing circumstances and applicable laws.

Dr. Burton Bronsther, Chair

Elevates the level of pediatric surgical care in developing nations. By invitation of health ministries and professional associations, following serious feasibility studies to assure that CSAI will not distract attention from the basic health needs of children in these countries, CSAI sends pediatric surgical specialists on monthly rotations to teach state-of-the-art surgical techniques and methodologies to their colleagues. Programs are tailored with consideration to the constraints and lack of sophisticated medical equipment in the indigenous countries. CSAI's fellowship training program offers surgeons from host countries three months of intensive training at medical schools and hospitals in the United States. Current programs are focused in Eastern Europe.

Dr. C. Scott Harrison, CEO and Chair

Establishes rehabilitation hospitals for disabled children in developing countries. CURE International is devoted to establishing Centers of Excellence, bringing the latest techniques in cost effective medical care and organization to developing countries. CURE places great importance on the need to build local capacity and employs an integrated teaching function at each hospital to train local surgeons in pediatric orthopedics. To that end, CURE has four main areas of focus: hospital management; financial support and partnering; sending key personnel; and training local doctors, nurses, and administrators.

Mr. Anthony J. Barbieri,
Director, Government Programs

Initiates, sustains, and supports non-sectarian, humanitarian, and developmental assistance programs in developing nations of the Caribbean Basin and Latin America. Goals are to improve the health; education; and economic, social, and spiritual condition of the poor. Relief and ongoing development projects are distributed through channels of missionaries of every denomination who have assumed the responsibilities of meeting the needs of the poor. Through shipments of food, medical supplies, school furniture, vocational training equipment, seeds, farming tools, clothing, lumber, and vehicles, the elderly are fed, abandoned babies are cared for, children go to school, men and women are established in profit-making microenterprises, standards of living are raised, and dignity and hope are restored.

Mr. Ca Van Tran, President

Provides assistance to Vietnamese children in referral services, case management, health and dental services, basic education, vocational training, and other related humanitarian services. HealthED is providing assistance to three displaced children's centers. Community-based programs assist vulnerable children, providing minimal financial aid to encourage education and microenterprise. The above services also are provided to the children of the community through an outreach program. Both the center and the outreach program are offered in Dalat and the provinces of Lam Dong, Can Tho, and Hung Yen. HealthED works closely with local Vietnamese officials to promote continuing developmental, vocational, and health programs within the Vietnamese child welfare community.

Mr. G. Lindsay Mattison, CEO

Supports the resolution of regional conflicts and sustainable development by providing development assistance in targeted areas worldwide. The International Center is a nonpartisan organization comprised of several groups: U.S.-Vietnam Trade Council, U.S.-Vietnam Forum, U.S.-Bulgaria Trade Council, and New Forests Projects (NFP). NFP provides farmers in developing countries with nitrogen-fixing tree seeds and training materials free-of-charge, and has initiated more than 4,300 village-level projects in 100 countries. The trade councils are membership groups with a mission to develop and strengthen economic ties between the United States and the host country, while encouraging U.S. trade and investment. The International Center sponsors international delegates who meet with business and political leaders to foster a better understanding of American politics.

Mr. William M. Novick, Medical Director

Continues its work by expanding services to new countries and providing needed education, clinical services, and updated equipment to its host countries. Over the past year, the ICHF has provided cardiac surgery to more than 270 children in six countries (China, Croatia, Nicaragua, Palestine, Peru, and the former Yugoslavia). ICHF has donated in excess of $530,000 in medical goods and services. ICHF's educational programs in Memphis and abroad have involved nearly 100 physicians, nurses, and technicians; ICHF believes that such a program is beneficial to the health and welfare of far more children with heart disease than those for whom it merely provides operations. Certainly the education and donated equipment result in colleagues being able to help more of their children after the organization's departure.

Ms. Laura Duke, President

Provides hope and a future to children in crisis. ICA achieves its mission through humanitarian aid, specialized clinics (counseling and social service), foster care, and adoptions. From 1990 to 2001, ICA sent more than 41 containers of humanitarian aid—amounting to several million dollars—to Russian territories. ICA collaborated with several other organizations to build hospitals and mobile dental and medical units for orphans, and to provide cleft palate surgeries. ICA also conducts a Welcome Home Camp each year, bringing between 30 and 50 orphans from differing territories. Most children will be adopted.

Brings disaster relief, health services, development assistance, and hope to millions of impoverished people around the world. Responding appropriately to quick- and slow-onset disasters, OBI mobilizes medical or logistics personnel and handles procurement and transportation of food; blankets; and building, medical, and other supplies. These necessities are distributed through a global network of international and indigenous partnering agencies, mission organizations, and churches. OBI also supports food security, education, economic empowerment, and intervention programs, addressing pressing community needs. OBI provides medical and surgical services and offers training to health care professionals overseas. Since 1978, OBI has served more than 150 people in 90 countries.

Mr. Dennis Ripley,
VP, Planning and Development

Creates nongovernmental organizations in developing countries that provide small loans (averaging $195) to help people start or expand businesses and become self-sufficient. Opportunity International offers business training and on-site visits to improve the management skills of its borrowers. Opportunity International has been offering capital rather than charity in 25 Asian, Latin American, African, Central European, Caribbean, and Middle Eastern countries to create jobs since 1971. The organization's purpose has been to fight chronic hunger and poverty at their root cause: unemployment. Opportunity International creates one family-supporting job with every $146 loaned. Opportunity International is dedicated to restoring dignity to the poor of developing countries by helping them to help themselves.

Executive Director

Empowers poor communities worldwide to solve their most urgent problems and increase their level of self-sufficiency. OI selects, trains, and supports indigenous community organizers to facilitate this process throughout Asia, Africa, the Caribbean, and the Americas. Community residents become the main actors in every phase of their own development—from identifying needs and priorities to planning, implementing, and evaluating solutions. Communities address a variety of issues, including health, education, and livelihood. A community organizer works in a village for approximately five years or until the community has developed the skills and confidence necessary to sustain the development process.

Mr. Michael Lundquist,
Executive Director

Addresses the long-term needs of people with disabilities, particularly those who have lost limbs because of war, landmines, and diseases. Collaboration between Polus, the Nicaraguan community, and North American volunteers resulted in Walking Unidos, the prosthetic outreach program in Leon, Nicaragua, that offers accessible and affordable prosthetic care, and in the opening of a prosthetic clinic. Polus faces challenges of expanding service, building capacity, and creating sustainable and follow-on programs. Polus provides prosthetic training for men and women who have lost limbs, and assists them in developing businesses that help other amputees acquire employment.

Provides products and services in more than 50 developing countries. Products and services include the social marketing of contraceptives, condoms for preventing sexually transmitted disease and AIDS, oral rehydration salts, mosquito nets to prevent malaria, water purification, iodized salt, and multivitamins. PSI operates a franchise of family planning and voluntary HIV testing and counseling clinics. PSI uses commercial marketing techniques and private-sector resources such as distributors, retailers, and advertising agencies. Programs motivate target groups to adopt healthy practices, to use specific products and services, and to foster related local industry and service capabilities. PSI supports market research, advertising, distribution, and manufacturing. Products are sold at prices affordable to lower-income groups, and revenues are used to defray program costs.

Ms. Merry Fredrick, Executive Director

Works at the grassroots level in international development to improve the quality of life and income of rural people by introducing appropriate, sustainable agricultural methods. Founded in 1959, SHI's programs are designed to promote self-reliance and create linkages between farmers and their communities. SHI carries out projects in Ghana and Nicaragua that introduce quality protein maize to improve crop yields and nutrition and that provide an intermediate means of transport to reduce the cost and improve the efficiency of farm-to-market transport. SHI also introduces postharvest technologies, which include corncribs, dryers, and shellers and provides microenterprise opportunities through the use of revolving funds for women and youth.

Mr. H.J. Van der Vaart, President

Promotes strong, small-business sector development through locally oriented investment funds in developing countries of the world on a commercially sustainable basis. Such funds are in operation in Poland, Croatia, Bulgaria, Russia, the Baltic republics, Macedonia, and Peru. The funds provide equity and quasi-equity financing through investments generally ranging from $25,000 to $300,000, business and technical assistance, and long-term loans to small and microenterprises (SMEs) in emerging markets and countries undergoing economic transition. SEAF's investment model is based on close partnership with SMEs; nonfinancial support and mutual trust are key components in the success of this relationship. SEAF is supported by various multilateral institutions, bilateral development agencies, private foundations, and others committed to SEAF's mission.

Mr. Terry Grumley, Executive Director

Promotes the spread of solar cooking to benefit people and environments worldwide, especially in areas of acute fuel shortages. SCI, an international clearinghouse for solar cooking devices and promotion programs, facilitates regional collaboration among 500 groups, provides training, and develops educational materials. SCI is conducting four pilot projects with voluntary partners in Africa: one in Zimbabwe and three in refugee camps in Kenya and Ethiopia. The organization's near-term goal is that 2.4 billion people will be aware of solar cookers and that 24 million will be using them. This level of use would save 3.24 million tons of firewood per year, reduce carbon dioxide emissions, improve health, and relieve growing fuel shortages.

Mr. Donald C. Lindholm,
Associate Executive Director

Specializes in work with languages spoken by the world's lesser-known linguistic groups. Serving in more than 50 countries, SIL develops programs in partnership with host governments, non-governmental organizations, universities, churches, and local communities. SIL promotes linguistic research, literacy, translation, language-based development, and other educational and research-related projects of practical, social, and moral value. A distinctive feature of SIL is its focus on unwritten languages. Those speaking unwritten languages frequently survive on the fringes of national life, enduring geographic, social, and economic isolation. Thus, SIL's work coincides with services to some of the most disadvantaged people living today.

The U.S. private and voluntary organizations (PVOs) presented vary in size from several thousand dollars to several million dollars in support and revenue from private, U.S. Government, international agencies, and in-kind donations.

For the past several years, the Foreign Assistance Appropriation Act has included the following provision regarding PVOs:

None of the funds appropriated or otherwise made available by this Act for development assistance may be made available to any United States private and voluntary organization, except any cooperative development organization, which obtains less than 20 percent of its total annual funding for international activities from sources other than the United States Government.*

The 20 percent requirement does not apply to

- ❖ Non-U.S. PVOs
- ❖ Cooperative Development Organizations
- ❖ Economic Support Funds (ESF), Disaster Assistance, or Other Non-Development Assistance (DA) Sources of Funding.

* The Privateness Percentage computation is based on overseas expenses reported by the PVO on its financial statements. This percentage excludes expenses for USAID-initiated activities.

Mr. Jean-Luc Bodin, Executive Director

Fights hunger by providing emergency assistance and by linking relief and development in five areas of expertise—nutrition, food security, health, disaster preparedness, and water sanitation. ACF intervenes, whether during a crisis through rehabilitation programs. ACF also integrates a disaster preparedness approach designed to reduce vulnerability and to strengthen capacities of local communities to respond to crises. Together with its three sister organizations, ACF works in 40 countries worldwide. The organization also engages in public education and advocacy efforts relating to hunger issues around world.

Mr. James Fitzpatrick,
Head, Partnership Development

Works with the poor and marginalized people to eradicate poverty by overcoming the injustice and inequity that cause it. Action Aid, the third largest development agency in the United Kingdom, addresses the root causes of poverty and improves the quality of lives. The organization aims to tackle the causes and effects of absolute poverty through long-term development programs and influencing work. Action Aid works directly with local communities and organizations, helping to ensure that basic needs are met, promoting basic rights as the focus in all its work, and providing emergency assistance when necessary.

Aide Medicale Internationale

Mr. Gil Collard, Executive Director

Sets up medical health programs specifically adapted to community needs by training local staff as well as rehabilitating older medical structures and conceiving of new ones. Founded in 1979 by a team of young doctors and nurses, AMI gained humanitarian experience during the crisis in Biafra, a former African secessionist state in what is now Nigeria. During the crisis, AMI intervenes, not exclusively in response to government appeals, but in response to the needs of victim populations, especially those excluded or isolated from any medical system. AMI assists victims of natural disasters, conflict, and unsanitary conditions, regardless of politics, ideology, or race.

Mr. Douglas W. Heydon,
Secretary and Finance Director

Provides humanitarian aid to Cambodia's 10.5 million people. CT has rehabilitated more than 10,000 mine victim amputees and disabled children and adults suffering from polio, cerebral palsy, and other crippling diseases, since the first of its three clinics opened in 1992. The organization is the initiator and driving force behind the Cambodian School of Prosthetics and Orthotics, which trains Cambodians to be prosthetists and orthotists (professionals who fit artificial limbs and braces). Graduates form the core of qualified staff who provide patients not just physical rehabilitation, but support to overcome prejudice and inequality, which often exclude them from mainstream society.

Mr. Jean-Yves Videau, General Manager

Supplies essential generic drugs, medical supplies, and laboratory equipment to humanitarian organizations that operate medico-pharmaceutical programs. The list of essential drugs, as defined by the World Health Organization (WHO), is referred to by developing countries to organize their own health systems. Many of these drugs have expired patents, so they can be distributed by CHMP at low cost as generic drugs. CHMP also provides information and formation about all aspects of quality for pharmaceutical missions. CHMP's biology department provides guidance on the WHO's approved techniques that will suit the infrastructure and budgets of organizations in the field, where basic biological analysis enables the rationalization of medical prescriptions and optimal health.

Ms. Judith Flacke, Director

Improves health care for children worldwide with a focus on war-torn and impoverished countries. Founded in 1995 by leading pediatricians in the United Kingdom, CAI complements other agencies and works with local people to develop hospital-based and tertiary care for the sickest infants and children. Such services are essential to the development of effective health care provision accessible to the majority of the population in many poor countries. CAI campaigns for family rights—as outlined in international law and convention—in disadvantaged countries and areas of armed conflict, with the specific intention of promoting the well-being and protection of children.

Dr. Daleep Mukarji, Director

Supports the poorest communities in their struggle to achieve a better life. The official relief and development agency of 40 British and Irish churches, Christian Aid works in more than 60 countries worldwide. The organization addresses the root causes of poverty through advocacy, campaigning, and education. Christian Aid tells the stories of those communities, the realities they face, and the work that they and Christian Aid achieve together. Christian Aid raises funds for the world's poorest people and works overseas with some of the world's poorest communities—be they Christian, of various faiths, or people who do not claim a particular belief.

Mr. Martin Lee, Director

Relieves people in need, especially refugees, displaced people, and children who are suffering by reason of background, war, or poverty. CORD is a caring, Christian-based, nongovernmental organization characterized by a Christian ethos, professionalism, and concern for the underprivileged. Although much of CORD's work is operational, the organization encourages self-reliance and the strengthening of local structures, emphasizing personal empowerment even within refugee and emergency settings. CORD, a signatory to the Red Cross Code of Conduct and the European Union's Nongovernmental Development Organizations' Charter, works in partnership with the U.N. High Commission on Refugees, other U.N. organizations, and the Netherlands-based ZOA Refugee Care.

Ms. Cinzia Giudici, President

Promotes cooperation projects in the world's southern countries and in emergency situations in Africa, South America, Asia, and the Balkans. COSV aims to reinforce and sustain development processes in particular developing regions of the world through an integral and multidisciplinary approach, which concerns various intervention areas, such as health and sanitation, agriculture, vocational training, rehabilitation and habitat, productive projects, education, and peace-building. All programs aim to further local participation from the very beginning, by improving life conditions of outcast groups, and by harmonizing social economic development. These programs create the necessary conditions for intervention sustainability after funding from international aid agencies has ceased.

Mr. D.J. Groot, International Director

Focuses on relief, rehabilitation, and structural development. DAI, an international christian organization, serves to lessen the effects of both man-made and natural disasters by providing food, clothing, and medical assistance. Rehabilitation programs are designed to assist displaced persons in resettling. In an effort to help local communities become self-sustainable and less dependent on foreign aid, DAI lends support through structural development projects. In helping the poor, DAI gives special attention to women and children. The projects are focussed on agriculture, water supply, health care, housing, and income-generating projects. DAI partners with local churches and christian business organizations.

Mr. Don McCready, Chief Executive

Promotes child welfare reform and the right of every child to grow up in a family within a self-sustaining community. ECT employs child-care specialists and direct training methods and works to change the legislation in Eastern Europe. ECT child care programs are designed to be integrated into the local communities via the central or local governments or local nongovernmental organizations. The responsibility for the welfare of children should rest with national bodies using local resources. ECT's network of international partners share the goal of providing local people with the tools to take responsibility for their own future.

Mr. Jean-Pierre Husi, Director

Contributes to building peace by reporting news that is useful, factual, and impartial to populations who are victims of violence or natural disaster and are otherwise cut off from independent media reports. Reporting impartial, independent, factual information professionally can help develop the conditions necessary for countries ravaged by war to return to peace and democracy. Fondation Hironnelle grew out of a 1994 initiative by three Swiss journalists who launched Radio Agatashya in the aftermath of the Rwandan genocide to broadcast information to refugee camps on the Zairian border. The organization has operated similar radio projects in Angola, Burundi, Kosovo, Liberia, and Tanzania.

Mr. Patrick Krause, Chief Executive

Works to reduce the poverty and increase the food security of people dependent on livestock. The purpose of VETAID's work is to strengthen livelihood strategies of resource-poor people through sustainable livestock development. VETAID works in Tanzania, Mozambique, Uganda, and Somaliland. The organization is involved in advocacy and promoting the rights of farmers and herders; capacity building of government and nongovernmental organizations; promotion of women's rights; and promotion of participatory sustainable development. VETAID also is involved in community-based decentralized, integrated animal health care; increased crop production and rural transportation; household income generation; and raising people's awareness of development issues.

Ms. Madeleine Onclin,
Executive Director

Works with impoverished people to help them enhance their quality of life by improving animal health and productivity, promoting animal welfare, and protecting the environment for sustainable development. VSF-Belgium's activities are based on direct links with local populations, through education and advocacy. In all activities, the local population is included in the project design, implementation, and decision making. The organization is open to all forms of cooperation with public and private organizations and local groups. VSF-Belgium aims to contribute to making people aware of the international situation by increasing information, consciousness, and solidarity. VSF-Belgium is a member of the VSF-Europa network.

Mr. Reinhart Sperner, CEO

Provides agricultural assistance to economically deprived people without any religious, political, or philosophical restrictions. VSF-Germany's primary duties involve the establishment of basic veterinarian services and para-vet programs, the improvement of animal health among agriculturally useful animals, productivity increases in the production of animal-based food and nonfood products, and the reduction of animal diseases that are transferable to humans. VSF-Germany also carries out emergency operations, especially to control and prevent epidemics. Areas of operation are East Africa and West Africa.

Mr. Marc Dolgin, Executive Director

Works in the field of international development. Incorporated in 1957, WUSC is governed by a volunteer board of directors, which brings together representatives from educational institutions, training organizations, WUSC alumni, and campus-based committees from across Canada. Over the past decade, WUSC has evolved into one of the largest Canadian nongovernmental organizations involved in the implementation of technical assistance and training programs. Since 1978, WUSC has provided approximately 2,500 person-years of assistance to developing countries and administered 5,000 person-years of academic and practical training programs. WUSC also acts as the Canadian recruitment agency for the United Nations Volunteer Program.
